Birth of a Family tells the story of four siblings who meet for the first time in their 50s. Separated from each other and their mother while they were babies, these Sixties Scoop survivors spend a long weekend in the Rockies, slowly building a family bond forged with tears, laughter, anger, love, and confusion. Connie, Gwen, Marianne and Anthony arrive at Calgary airport on a spring day, and by the time they catch their return flights their lives have been irrevocably transformed. Connie is single, a consummate planner who spearheaded the gathering and aches to see everyone and everything gel. Gwen is a straight-shooting single mother whose steely manner masks a deep-seated vulnerability. Raised in Belgium, Marianne has no real sense of what it means to be Indigenous, a hole she doesn't know how to fill. Anthony is soft-spoken, long-haired and preparing to be a grandfather for the first time as he struggles to find his place as the big brother to three strong women. Two impactful outings shape the siblings' time together. During a Saturday morning excursion to the SkyWalk Connie's crippling fear of heights is revealed, setting the stage for her sisters and brother to bond as she teeters on the verge of falling apart. The next day the siblings gather at the Indigenous arts market where Marianne had bought a pair of earrings on her own. When Alma, the elder who sold them, learned that Marianne was a Sixties Scoop survivor she invited her to return with her family to meet her husband. Their time with Simon is life changing. He names their pain and encourages them to mend their broken lives. It is granite-strong Gwen who is soon shattered by self-doubt and self-hatred. The wordless embrace Gwen, Connie, Marianne and Anthony then share speaks volumes.

Jen, a talented teenage footballer from a close-knit rural community is suffocating under the pressures of her football academy, the chaos of her alcoholic father and the fresh grief of her mother's death. In a desperate bid for freedom, she escapes to London with her boyfriend, only to be betrayed and left utterly alone in an unfamiliar city. Stranded and heartbroken, Jen confronts the harsh reality of her choices. With no support and nowhere to turn, she eventually makes the courageous decision to return home. On coming back, Jen must navigate the difficult path of redemption: rejoining the football club she abandoned, healing the fractured relationships with her family, and learning to face her challenges head-on without running away. Coming Home is a powerful and unique story, following Jen's profound character arc through the dizzying highs of intense football matches and the powerful exploration of social issues in modern Britain. It is a deeply engaging narrative of grief, family, empowerment, and one girl's tumultuous journey to adulthood through football.

Tanner Hughes was raised by his grandparents, following in his grandfather's military footsteps to become an Army Ranger. His whole life has been spent abroad, and he is the proverbial rolling stone: happiest when off on his next adventure, zero desire to settle down. But when his grandmother passes away, her last words to him are find where you belong. She also drops a bombshell, telling him the name of the father he never knew—and where to find him. Tanner is due at his next posting soon, but his curiosity is piqued, and he sets out for Asheboro, North Carolina, to ask around. He's been in town less than twenty-four hours when he meets Kaitlyn Cooper, a doctor and single mom. They both feel an immediate connection; Tanner knows Kaitlyn has a story to tell, and he wants to hear it. To Kaitlyn, Tanner is mysterious, exciting—and possibly leaving in just a few weeks. Meanwhile, nearby, eighty-three-year-old Jasper lives alone in a cabin bordering a national forest. With only his old dog, Arlo, for company, he lives quietly, haunted by a tragic accident that took place decades before. When he hears rumors that a white deer has been spotted in the forest—a creature of legend that inspired his father and grandfather—he becomes obsessed with protecting the deer from poachers.

The fascinating story behind the making of Bruce Springsteen's most surprising album, Nebraska, revealing its pivotal role in Springsteen's career. Without Nebraska, Bruce Springsteen might not be who he is today. The natural follow-up to Springsteen's hugely successful album The River should have been the hit-packed Born in the U.S.A. But instead, in 1982, he came out with an album consisting of a series of dark songs he had recorded by himself, for himself. But more than forty years later, Nebraska is arguably Springsteen's most important record—the lasting clue to understanding not just his career as an artist and the vision behind it, but also the man himself. Nebraska is rough and unfinished, recorded on cassette tape with a simple four-track recorder by Springsteen, alone in his bedroom, just as the digital future was announcing itself. And yet Springsteen now considers it his best album. Nebraska expressed a turmoil that was reflective of the mood of the country, but it was also a symptom of trouble in the artist's life, the beginnings of a mental breakdown that Springsteen would only talk about openly decades after the album's release.

Doctor Stephen Strange (Cumberbatch) has been sought out by a multiversal organization called The Black Priests. Clea (Theron) is a member of this organization. The Black Priests' HQ will be in the Nothing Space of Destroyed Universes, which exists within the space of two dead universes caused by an incursion. Doctor Strange finds himself summoned by a cross-dimensional entity known as The Black Priests, a group that operates within the multiverse. Clea is an active member within this enigmatic organization. The central headquarters of The Black Priests is situated within the Nothing Space of Destroyed Universes. This realm exists between the remnants of two deceased universes, both casualties of a cataclysmic incursion event. Revelations come to light that unveil the impending demise of the Multiverse itself. The underlying cause of this impending decay traces back to a series of incursions spanning the entire Multiverse. Among these, the most recent disruption was triggered by none other than Doctor Strange. This sequel will delve into a concept briefly touched upon in the preceding film: Doctor Strange's inadvertent role as a potential threat to the stability of the entire Multiverse. (Denzel Washington mentioned for the role of Dormammu.)

When an unwanted Valentine's Day present is dumped at the shelter, volunteer Lily decides to foster the poor dog herself. A little attention is all he needs to blossom into a loving pet, ready for his forever home. Plus, helping a poor, rejected animal will distract her from her own problems. Win, win. Right? Wrong. Valentine needs more than a makeover if he's going to be adopted. He destroys her home, hates to be groomed and when he behaves better for a perfect stranger than he does her, Lily swallows her pride and begs the good looking but quiet stranger for help. After losing his canine partner in a horrific moment that upended his future, sexy and stoic Shane turns to books, walks in the park and remodeling his grandmother's home. No more intense K9 officer career, no more dogs, no more risks. But it's hard to ignore the misunderstood mutt at the park and his well-intentioned, but clueless, handler. Shane reluctantly agrees to give her a few tips and tricks, but that's all. He won't care. He won't get invested. And once Valentine finds his new home, his life can go back to normal.

A procedural drama with comedic undertones. In it, brilliant but directionless, the great grandson of Albert Einstein (Gubler) spends his days as a comfortably tenured professor until his bad boy antics land him in trouble with the law and he is pressed into service helping a local police detective solve her most puzzling cases. Gubler's Lew Einstein is a popular professor at Princeton... when he actually shows up for class. Irreverent and misguided, Lew's genius and famous name weighs heavily on him but using his gift to help solve homicides may— finally— offer his life some direction and purpose. While very different as personalities, Lew Einstein shares scientific background with Gubler's beloved Criminal Minds character Spencer Reid who also is a genius and holds Ph.D.s in Mathematics, Chemistry, and Engineering.

Meet Lance Dunkquist (Efron). 38-years-old. Works a meaningless job. Still lives above his parents' garage. By all accounts, a world-class loser. Except for one glaring exception. He has a million-dollar face. Lance has been mistaken twenty-eight times for the Oscar-winning movie star, James Jansen (Efron), and for the last 10 years, he's saved his money, studied Jansen's films, his moves, his idiosyncrasies, even the way he speaks. Now, after an unceremonious termination from his job, Lance has decided that the time has come to go after his dream. From New York's ridiculous avant-garde, off-off Broadway scene, to the surreal glitter of Los Angeles, follow Lance on his madcap journey of self-abandonment to become his likeness. Part comedy, part human tragedy, and part suspense, the world through the eyes of Lancelot Blue Dunkquist is like none you've ever seen.

After the leader of an upper-echelon criminal organization suffers memory loss from an attack, he reunites with his crew, only to find that things aren't what he thinks they are. When John Riley (Smith) wakes up in Tijuana after being left for dead with absolutely no memory, he follows a string of clues to uncover his identity discovering he's been living two different lives: one, as a super-successful crime kingpin, surrounded by beautiful women, expensive toys, and a lavish lifestyle and the other as an undercover CIA agent, but with a puny salary, no family or home life whatsoever, and zero trappings of success. The problem is, he can't remember which of these two personas is his true identity, and, more importantly, which life he really wants to live.

Grand Prairie is a captivating visual odyssey shot on IMAX 70mm, set in Alberta, Canada. A hybrid docu-narrative, the film explores how our identity is connected to and shaped by the landscape around us. The film hypnotically moves through a diverse cast of all ages and backgrounds, each small story emblematic of a distinct tie to the land the character has. These moments poetically weave together with stunning shots of the different landscapes that personify each, to create an immersive non-linear experience. (January 15 - February 28, 2025)

Millie's been living in her car for awhile after being let go from her most recent job. When a high paying job arises working for the Winchesters, Millie can hardly believe her luck when she's offered the job. All she has to do is keep the house clean, take care of the Winchesters' daughter Cecelia, and cook for them. It's not too bad considering how much she's being paid. Plus, she'll be able to finally sleep in a bed! However, things drastically take a turn for the worst on Millie's first day. Nina Winchester (Seyfried), the wife, is constantly berating Millie and leaving big messes for her. She's gaslighting Millie at every turn. Is there a method to Nina's madness or is Nina really out to get Millie?

Industry gives an insider's view of the blackbox of high finance following a group of young bankers as they forge their identities within the pressure cooker environment and sex and drug fueled blitz of international bank Pierpoint & Co's London office. Season three has followed Pierpoint's Yasmin (Marisa Abela), Robert (Harry Lawtey), and Eric (Ken Leung) as they make a big bet on a green tech energy company led by a member of the British peerage (Kit Harington) that puts them in contact with the highest levels of finance, media and government. Harper (Myha'la), meanwhile, looks for a way back into the addictive world of finance.

In August, San Francisco is a cold beauty...and the perfect place for a killer targeting young women visiting the Bay Area. The latest victim is Emma Barre, a deaf French teenager. Emma is also brilliant and due to enter one of France's best universities. But Emma, just seventeen, has disappeared while visiting the City's famous Pier 39 with her parents. The extremely well known and heavily visited tourist attraction is the site of all the killer's previous abductions. Somehow, this psychopath is able to spirit his victims away despite the attraction being full of visitors from all over the world. Her only hope is troubled SFPD Detective Michael O'Higgins, currently taking Acid as part of an experimental program for PTSD patients. but can O'Higgins see clearly enough to track down an elusive killer, or will mind-altering substances prevent him from doing his sworn duty? As O'Higgins closes in, he will come face-to-face with both the trauma that ruptured his own life, and a killer hell-bent on ending that of a young girl.

Before Owen Michaels (Coster-Waldau) disappears, he manages to smuggle a note to his beloved wife of one year: Protect her. Despite her confusion and fear, Hannah Hall (Garner) knows exactly to whom the note refers: Owen's sixteen-year-old daughter, Bailey (Rice). Bailey, who lost her mother tragically as a child. Bailey, who wants absolutely nothing to do with her new stepmother. As Hannah's increasingly desperate calls to Owen go unanswered; as the FBI arrests Owen's boss; as a US Marshal and FBI agents arrive at her Sausalito home unannounced, Hannah quickly realizes her husband isn't who he said he was. And that Bailey just may hold the key to figuring out Owen's true identity—and why he really disappeared. Hannah and Bailey set out to discover the truth, together. But as they start putting together the pieces of Owen's past, they soon realize they are also building a new future. One neither Hannah nor Bailey could have anticipated. Late Bloomer is a comedy series that follows the everyday life of Jassi, your average turban wearing 'live at home' millennial. Like many others his age, he continuously feels like he's behind in life as he witnesses his peers with seemingly thriving careers and picture perfect marriages. The added pressure as an eldest son within an immigrant household is, of course, not really helping either. Working as a driver for a family-run tiffin business (delivering Indian home cooked meals to students), he decides to start a video blog and share the frustrations of his mediocre attempts at adulthood. As a result, he finds himself striking a chord with a steadily growing internet audience who can relate to his journey. Like many first generation children of immigrants, he stems from a deeply rooted Indo-Canadian community and constantly finds himself balancing his cultural Eastern roots while adapting Western ideals of discovering a sense of self. This show tackles themes like dating as a POC, digital-age friendships, self-growth with a million modern distractions, spirituality and dealing with a dysfunctional (yet loving) Punjabi family. All this while navigating the Wild West of online celebrity and becoming an unlikely voice of an unheard generation. Throughout Jassi's journey in the show, he crosses paths with a variety of colorful characters, outlandish dilemmas, and trying situations that challenge the very notions of who he is. The bonds between three picture-perfect - but viciously protective - mothers and their close-knit sons are tested during one unforgettable summer. Austin's Zilker Park neighborhood is a wonderland of greenbelt trails, live music, and moms who drink a few too many margaritas. Whitney, Annette, and Liza have grown thick as thieves as they have raised their children together for 15 years, believing that they can shelter them their children from an increasingly dangerous world. Their friendship is unbreakable - as safe as the neighborhood where they've raised their sweet little boys. Or so they think. One night, the three women have been enjoying happy hour when their boys, lifeguards for the summer, come back on bicycles from a late-night dip in their favorite swimming hole. The boys share a secret - news that will shatter the perfect world their mothers have so painstakingly created.

Eighteen years ago, teenager Ela Roberts disappeared from the quiet, small town of Llanemlyn. Her boyfriend, Joe (Iwan Rheon), was arrested and convicted of her murder, although her body has never been found. Joe is now about to be released on parole. He has never given a motive for killing Ela and, although he does not deny the crime, he has always claimed amnesia around the event. No, I'm not sure how that stands up either. Ela's mother, Sharon, played by the always brilliant Joanna Scanlan, has kept the light on in the hall for her ever since – not in hope, because she accepts that Ela must be dead and wishes only for Joe to reveal what he did with her body, but in memoriam. She still "sees" her daughter around the house, and Scanlan captures the bustling, empty energy of a woman assailed by a terrible grief who must continue for the sake of her remaining daughter, Greta (Annes Elwy), and in case Joe ever reveals the information she craves. "I'm genuinely surprised I haven't got cancer from hating him so much." Cat Donato (Alexandra Roach), a childhood friend of Ela, is now a young, ambitious investigative journalist. She spends most of the hour being persuaded by her colleagues and (unnaturally gentle) editor to write about the case now that Joe is out of prison. I cannot tell you how much less than an hour it would take to persuade a young, ambitious investigative journalist of this in real life, nor how swiftly the story might have moved without this unnecessary brake on, but here we are and let's not start 2023 with any more complaints than we must. A marriage of convenience and three nights a month. That's all the sultry, self-made billionaire wants from the impoverished prince. And at the end of the year, she'll grant him his divorce...with a settlement large enough to save his beloved kingdom. As a Latinx woman, Roxanne Medina has conquered small-town bullies, Ivy League snobs and boardrooms full of men. She's earned the right to mother a princess and feel a little less lonely at the top. The offer she's made is more than generous, and when the contract's fulfilled, they'll both walk away with everything they've ever wanted. Príncipe Mateo Ferdinand Juan Carlos de Esperanza y Santos is one of the top winegrowers in the world, and he's not marrying and having a baby with a stranger. Even if the millions she's offering could save his once-legendary wine-producing principality. But the successful, single-minded beauty uses a weapon prince Mateo hadn't counted on: his own desire.

The supernatural horror involves a couple, Harry and Sasha, who find their dream house in a ranch in Idaho. He's a soldier getting back to life, and they bid what they can, which is a lowball offer. They get the ranch but find they are not alone. Soon they meet their neighbors, who inform them that there is a malevolent spirit in the valley, one that manifests itself by coming to the house in the same manner at the start of each season. There are certain steps that must be followed to keep the spirit out of their house, and the tension and violence grows with each gory ritual as the duel between the spirits and the ex-Marine soldier becomes personal.

PRODUCER: Joe Barbagallo - Logan Hunter WRITER/DIRECTOR: Jenni Farley CD: David Guglielmo

Nanny Cam is a harrowing tale of a seemingly normal middle class American Family that transitions from the city to a small town rural life following the birth of their first child. The stress and pressures of a new born daughter compounded with the eerie traits of an unfamiliar rundown house on the outskirts of an unusual little town brings our leading lady to question her sanity as she begins seeing bizarre things on the newly installed "Nanny Cameras" throughout the house. Is the stress getting to her or is there something more sinister at play?

Neuromancer, takes place in the near future in a cyberpunk setting. Cyberpunk is a genre that focuses on future societies where technology has advanced, but crime and corruption have as well. Common features include globe-spanning mega-corporations, cybernetically enhanced mercenaries, and the importance of technology as a tool for crime. The story follows the experiences of Case (Turner), an out-of-work hacker who is contacted by a mysterious new employer called Armitage. Along with Molly, a mercenary cyborg, and a thief/illusionist named Peter Riviera, Case participates in a series of data thefts for their employer. Their first job has them stealing an electronic copy of the mind of McCoy Pauley, a brilliant hacker who taught Case a great deal of what he knows. They steal this electronic mind to help them in performing their next job. After that, the group must head to Freeside, an enormous space habitat in orbit around Earth. Freeside serves as a luxury resort and casino for the wealthy, and it is also the location of Villa Straylight, the home of the incredibly wealthy and powerful Tessier-Ashpool family. The group's second job is to break into the Villa Straylight and hack into Wintermute, a powerful artificial intelligence created by the Tessier-Ashpool family. In the end, it turns out that Wintermute itself was behind the whole scheme. Government regulations put careful restrictions on artificial intelligences to prevent them from getting out of hand, and Wintermute was using Armitage and his team to break those restrictions. This allows Wintermute to merge with another A.I. called Neuromancer, becoming a new, more powerful electronic being. (October 2024 - May 2025)

Nika and Madison are old friends from the rez but who have taken separate paths in life. Madison a university student is sharp, and career focused, Nika prefers the solitude and simplicity of the reservation. When Madison is taken by a police officer after a night of drinking, her friend Nika tails the cruiser and clubs the officer unconscious, sending them both 'on the lam'. Hiding out on the reservation helps them collect their thoughts, but Nika's instincts to flee take them both into the woods to live off the land. Law enforcement continues to encroach on the pair as the chase intensifies. Nika and Madison head to Toronto to talk to a lawyer. Nika, whose past trauma have hardened her against any kind of systematic justice, is forced to make a choice, flee or stand up for herself. (November 11 - December 6, 2024)

Based around an annual event in Enid, Oklahoma, "The One" is an inspirational Holiday film about Hawk, a Native American foster teen who ages out of the system and uses his train ticket out of Chicago to see the lighting of the tallest Christmas Tree in the United States. Hawk suffers from undiagnosed PTSD, separation anxiety, and lack of any Native culture from growing up in so many different homes. While waiting for the lighting of the tree, he crosses paths with Jefferson, a train attendant that shows Hawk around town, and more importantly, where to get free food. While Hawk is playing his guitar on the tracks, he runs into runaway teen, Alexis, who is grieving the loss of her twin sister. The two reminisce about Hawk's Foster life, discuss the existence of God, and dodge her family who is frantically searching for her. Together they find a look-out spot to watch the lighting, but things don't turn out as Hawk planned. The film is strewn with surprise comedic characters and twists and turns that will not only open eyes to the plight of the Foster system, but also remind us that it is never too late...whatever that may mean for you. The biopic will focus on a break-in that may or may not have occurred at the house of author Philip K. Dick (Giamatti), whose work inspired 'Blade Runner' and 'Total Recall.' Only Apparently Real centers on a break-in at Dick's house that took place in the early '70s. He was in the midst of his fourth divorce, trying to give up amphetamines, battling writer's block and possibly being spied on by the United States government. Then his house was ransacked, his safe blown open and his manuscripts were stolen. But then again, maybe they weren't and maybe there was never a break-in. The story also tackles what Dick himself described as a tragic theme that pervaded his life: The death in infancy of his twin sister, Jane, and the reenactment of it over and over again. Dick attributed many of his psychological issues and personal life challenges to her death, including his attachment anxieties.

The Other Bennet Sister is a fresh spin around the ballroom for one of Jane Austen's most unassuming characters: Mary Bennet – the middle sister in Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice. The series takes as its premise that when it comes to the Bennet sisters – while we dream of being Lizzy, in reality most of us are more like Mary. Unlike her sisters, Mary isn't your typical period drama heroine. She is awkward, anxious, preachy, full of facts, a terrible singer... overlooked by her mother and seemingly destined to an empty dance card for the rest of her life... until Mary takes matters into her own hands. The Other Bennet Sister gives Mary Bennet an epic love story, taking her from her family home in Meryton to the soirees of Regency London and the peaks and vales of the Lake District – all in search of independence, romance and, most elusive of all, self-love and acceptance.

A troubled young mother yearns for a shot at redemption in this heartbreaking yet hopeful story. After serving five years in prison for a tragic mistake, Kenna Rowan returns to the town where it all went wrong, hoping to reunite with her four-year-old daughter. But the bridges Kenna burned are proving impossible to rebuild. Everyone in her daughter's life is determined to shut Kenna out, no matter how hard she works to prove herself. The only person who hasn't closed the door on her completely is Ledger Ward, a local bar owner and one of the few remaining links to Kenna's daughter. But if anyone were to discover how Ledger is slowly becoming an important part of Kenna's life, both would risk losing the trust of everyone important to them. The two form a connection despite the pressure surrounding them, but as their romance grows, so does the risk. Kenna must find a way to absolve the mistakes of her past in order to build a future out of hope and healing. (Release Date: February 13, 2026)

Jeffrey Manchester (Tatum), a good man from a good home, a caring father with special forces training, allows his worthy intentions to trigger bad decisions which lead to unfortunate but foreseeable consequences. After being sentenced for robbing a McDonald's restaurant, Jeff breaks out of prison and goes into hiding at a Toys "R" Us. When he finally emerges from cover to donate a bag of stolen toys to a local church, he finds himself entangled in a web of unexpected relationships. Wanting to please others, particularly an attractive divorcée and her two daughters, Jeff assumes a new identity and finds warmth and love he has never known. But is it too late? Ben Richards is a desperate man. With no job, no money, no way out, and a young daughter in need of proper medical attention, he must turn to the only possibility of striking it rich in this near-future dystopian America: participating in the ultra-violent TV programming of the government-sanctioned Games Network. Ben soon finds himself selected as a contestant on the biggest and the best that the Games Network has to offer: "The Running Man," a no-holds-barred thirty-day struggle to stay alive as public enemy number one, relentlessly hunted by an elite strike force bent on killing him as quickly as possible in front of an audience all-too eager to see that happen. It means a billion dollars in prize money if he can live for the next month. No one has ever survived longer than eight days. But desperation can push a person do things they never thought possible—and Ben Richards is willing to go the distance in this ultimate game of life and death. Secret Service follows senior MI6 officer, Kate Henderson, whose life must seem pretty ordinary to those who don't know her well, as she's happily married with two teenagers and a job in the civil service. However, Kate's real job is heading up the Russia Desk of the Secret Intelligence Service.

When her undercover operations reveal alarming evidence that a senior UK politician is possibly a high-level Russian asset, Kate is in a race against time to uncover their identity. Then a young woman is brutally murdered, throwing Kate and her team into the spotlight. With blood on her hands, her reputation to uphold, her family hanging by a thread, and an election looming, Kate is quickly running out of options and the clock is ticking.

In Shiver, meet Sam. He's not just a normal boy--he has a secret. During the summer he walks and talks as a human, but when the cold comes, he runs with his pack as a wolf. Grace has spent years watching the wolves in the woods behind her house--but never dreamed that she would fall in love with one of them. Linger tells the story of Sam and Grace's struggle to stay together, and the dangerous secret Grace must keep from everyone, including her parents. In Forever, wolves are being hunted, which means the stakes are even higher for Grace and Sam and the wolf pack. With Sinner comes the long awaited story of Cole, a wolf wrestling with his own demons, and his attempt to win back Isabel Culper. For Grace, Sam, and Cole and Isabel, life is harrowing and euphoric, enticing and alarming. As their world falls apart, love is what lingers. But can it be enough?

We'll follow Kiara (a PhD best-selling author on African spirituality) and Milestone "Miles" Williams (a former MMA fighter turned trainer and gym owner) as they finalize their divorce and prepare to move out of their once warm and loving starter home. A life altering event has Kiara guilt ridden, consumed by depression, and unable to find the closure that she desperately needs. Miles' love for her isn't enough as his own inadequacies are fully exposed. Taking extreme measures to end her pain, Kiara's attempt at suicide is halted by bizarre paranormal experiences in their home. Trapped within the house, their encounters with the supernatural become more and more extreme. Together, Kiara and Miles must make sense of the encounters while attempting to mend their relationship, or risk losing each other and maybe even their lives. (October 28 - November 22, 2024)

In an age where Humans and Fairies coexist, tragedy strikes the Human Realm when its King and Queen meet an untimely death. Their young son, now the sole heir, faces the daunting task of ruling a kingdom teetering on the edge of collapse. Overwhelmed by grief and fear, the child's plight moves the Faerie Queen, who compassionately spirits him away to the Faerie State, to preserve his innocence. Yet, this well-meaning act unwittingly deepens the crisis in the Human Realm. As the balance between the two worlds crumbles, a unique band of heroes emerges: The Poet, The Knight, The Horse and The Fae Princess. United by a common cause, they embark on a journey to locate the lost Prince and restore him to his rightful throne, in hopes of rekindling the equilibrium between the Human and Faerie worlds. Trigger Point is set in contemporary London and focuses on the Bomb Disposal Squad. Known as “Expo”, officers risk their lives daily on ‘the long walk’ towards danger. Death is always just a heartbeat away. Lana Washington (McClure) is an experienced bomb disposal operative. Reckless and out of control, Lana is ex-military and pushed to breaking point dealing with a series of improvised explosive devices which threaten the capital during a terrorist summer campaign. Under extreme pressure and searching for answers, Lana can’t help but become suspicious that the bomber is premeditatedly targeting her unit. It’s a terrifying thought, but against all odds how does she prove it and discover the bomber’s real identity?

Investigative Journalist Victoria Lockhart loses her job and instantly goes from being on top of the world to New York sludge on the bottom of her shoe. No one will return her calls or emails. Bills are piling up. Desperate for work, Victoria must accept the only job she’s offered – managing a Villa on a beautiful Caribbean island. You would think it being paradise, nothing could go wrong – However, the company she now works for is in complete shambles, not to mention how it takes forever to get anything done thanks to everyone working on “island time”. There’s competition from neighboring resorts and she can’t stop thinking about the handsome detective Juan – though there’s nothing wrong with that – except for when a wealthy guest is found dead...at her villa! With her job and reputation on the line and the police ruling the death as an accident (because murder is bad for tourism), Victoria has no choice but to investigate the crime herself. (She has a degree in journalism and has read every Agatha Christie novel ever written – how hard can it be?) Trouble in Paradise is a weekly soap, mystery dramedy about a woman questioning life’s biggest decisions while dealing with a new job, over privileged clients, a handsome crush, and murder!

Under Salt Marsh is a gripping crime thriller set in the fictional Welsh town of Morfa Halen, a tight-knit community precariously nestled between towering mountains and a fast-encroaching sea that threatens its very existence. As a once-in-a-generation storm begins to gather far out at sea, former detective turned teacher Jackie Ellis (Reilly) discovers the body of her 8-year-old pupil, Cefin, seemingly drowned. The discovery sends shockwaves through the community, reviving the ghost of an unsolved cold case that rocked the town three years prior – the disappearance of Jackie’s niece, Nessa, which cost her career. Cefin’s death summons Jackie’s former partner, Detective Eric Bull, back to Morfa Halen to lead the investigation into a community he failed once before. Convinced the cases are linked, Jackie and Bull must reconcile and race to uncover long-buried secrets inside Morfa, before the storm breaks and all the evidence is gone for good. An intimate and cinematic story, Under Salt Marsh takes audiences into the heart of a community bound by nature and fractured by an unthinkable crime. (October 2024 - February 2025)

The comedy revolves around Leanne, whose life takes an unexpected turn when her husband of 33 years leaves her for another woman. Starting over when you're a grandmother and in menopause isn't exactly what she had in mind, but with the help of her family she will navigate this new chapter with grace, dignity and Jell-o salad. Johnston will star opposite Morgan as her sister Carol, a two-time divorcee with no kids who would rather hang out at a bar than attend church. Despite their differences, Carol is fiercely loyal to her sister Leanne and is her ride-or-die. (October 11 - April 11, 2025)

Psychological horror meets cyber noir in this haunted house thriller in which the haunting is by AI. Henry is a brilliant engineer who, after untold hours spent in his home lab, has achieved the breakthrough of his career—he's created an artificially intelligent consciousness. He calls the half-formed robot William. No one knows about William. Henry's agoraphobia keeps him inside the house, and his fixation on his project keeps him up in the attic, away from everyone, including his pregnant wife, Lily. When Lily's coworkers show up, wanting to finally meet Henry and see the new house—the smartest of smart homes—Henry decides to introduce them to William, and things go from strange to much worse. Soon Henry and Lily discover the security upgrades intended to keep danger out of the house are even better at locking it in.

Authors June Hayward and Athena Liu were supposed to be twin rising stars. But Athena's a literary darling. June Hayward is literally nobody. Who wants stories about basic white girls, June thinks. So when June witnesses Athena's death in a freak accident, she acts on impulse: she steals Athena's just-finished masterpiece, an experimental novel about the unsung contributions of Chinese laborers during World War I. So what if June edits Athena's novel and sends it to her agent as her own work? So what if she lets her new publisher rebrand her as Juniper Song—complete with an ambiguously ethnic author photo? Doesn't this piece of history deserve to be told, whoever the teller? That's what June claims, and the New York Times bestseller list seems to agree. But June can't get away from Athena's shadow, and emerging evidence threatens to bring June's (stolen) success down around her. As June races to protect her secret, she discovers exactly how far she will go to keep what she thinks she deserves.
